Fasten off leaving 18" tail

Thread long tail onto the needle and insert into space right above the short starting tail. With the right side facing up, roll the flower up from left to right. Now insert the needle through all the layers at the bottom to secure them together. Do this a few times, alternating the placement. Once you are sure that you have all your layers secured together, tie the two tails in a knot 3-4 times and cut.

ASSEMBLY

1. Stuff the horn with the fiberfill until the horn will hold its shape and will stand nicely on the headband without being floppy.
2. Find the middle point of your headband cover and position the horn. You can use a few scrap pieces of yarn to tack the horn down till you get done sewing around the edge.
3. Take your fabric tape measure and measure the headband from tip to tip across the top. Take your sharpie and mark where the middle point of your headband is (mine is 7 5/8")

4. To keep the horn from moving off-center we will be gluing the horn portion to the headband. Put a small amount of hot glue on the area under the horn and attach the headband cover (with attached horn) on the area where you placed the sharpie mark. Making sure that it is centered.

5. Now we will wrap the headband with the cover. With the long tail threaded on your needle, insert the needle into the corner of the edge opposite the tail and pull through. Do the same with the next two stitches of the short side and then through the last stitch and bring the needle back to where your tail originally started. Slip the end of the headband into the little pocket you just created and start to whipstitch the two long sides together, enclosing the headband. Do this until you have enclosed the whole of the headband, fasten off, and weave in end.

6. Hot glue two leaves to the front edge of the headband in front of the horn.

8. Hot glue ears 1 1/4" to each side of the horn, butting them up to the back edge of the headband.

7. Hot glue large flower into space in front of the horn and over the two leaves from Step 6.

9. Continue to hot glue and leaves. Place medium flowers on each side of the horn; the next set of medium flowers in front of the ears; and the small set of flowers on the end. Tuck in and glue the leaves where you'd like
